Catherine Hess, Timothy Husband : European Glass in the J. Paul Getty Museum before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised European Glass in the J. Paul Getty Museum:

This beautifully illustrated volume presents sixty-eight objects from one of the world's finest collections of post-classical glass--including such marvels as glass imitating rock-crystal and other semi-precious stones, glass formed into large and intricate shapes, and glass decorated with engraving, enameling, gilding, and carving. Each object is painstakingly described and a series of essays provide a wealth of background information.
