I also teared up even though I knew the towns folk would come through for Stella. The big surprise was Alma and the nursing home. I look forward to read the next book in the series.

There will be one, right? 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. A good follow-up to the first in the series By Fio Zacha Kay Velarde has written a good second episode in her Sewanee mountain series. The characters introduced in book one are further developed in the course of an engaging mystery and a significant development in Stella's life. I look forward to book 3. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five Stars By DJTLovedit--great read!

Kay Velarde returns with her thrilling second novel in the Sewanee Mountain Quilt Mysteries series. Stella Hill has found her dream job as Director of the Tennessee Heritage Craft Center. Tasked with planning the grand opening, Stella hires handyman Donnie Clark to make some much needed repairs to the Center. Everything seems to be going smoothly until Donnie is found murdered. Intrigue follows the case when Stella runs into Donnie's identical twin brother, whose recently been released from prison. Did he murder his brother or did someone else? Between searching for unique crafts for the Center and balancing two boyfriends, Stella retraces the events of a decade ago that sent one man to prison and left one to squander life's opportunities. Now it's up to Stella to catch a murderer and prevent a grave injustice.

About the Author Kay Velarde was born and grew up in the heart of the Appalachian Mountains in Southwestern Virginia. After graduating from a branch campus of the University of Virginia, she left home for the lure of travel as a career serviceman in the Air Force. Kay loves to piece by hand and regularly practices her hand quilting. Retirement has offered time to pursue a second career in writing. Kay is proud to be an American Quilter's Society fiction author.
